Wing File Search is a utility that enables you to create indexes with the content on your drives and search for specific files using keywords. KeyMacro is a useful tool that enables you to generate macros in several languages such as: Python, C, Perl, VBA, Visual Basic, PHP, Java and JavaScript. The main functions include the ability to create a series of keywords or search them on the file name, file extension, or line number. KeyMacro comes with a simple to use interface that enables you to find the correct macro to create the application for a specific language. One of the features that would make KeyMacro worth your time is the ability to create files that can contain the macros at any time. Thus, you can have a number of macros generated in the background without even being open to your computer. This is a great feature that makes things simpler and allows you to get things done fast. Unfortunately, this application has some bugs and the macros are not created in a good way. In fact, the application is quite unstable and crashes frequently. To be fair, the developers are well aware of this problem and are working hard to fix it. However, it is important to mention that the developers could use some help and feedback. ## What's New in the?

-> Search for and manage large sets of files and folders -> Create, rename and delete indexes -> Edit indexes easily and quickly -> Preview files in the interface -> Search, view, manage, rename, delete and create indexes -> Quickly search for files based on any criteria -> Full Unicode support with content control characters, including accented characters -> Full Unicode support with content control characters, including accented characters -> No registration required When considering the current price of Wing File Search, it is really a deal, although the developers of the application could make the app smoother and increase its responsiveness. For those of you who want to see an example of what the application can do, you can download the free edition. Full review on FileHippo.com We use to use the Windows search in all of our PCs but the Windows Search is very limited and does not like to have a lot of files. Windows 7 does not even have this feature. While searching, sometimes the user does not know what type of file it is and it can take ages to search through several different types of files to find the one he is looking for. Wing File Search has been created to allow users to search the content on their drives and manage the files and folders to find specific files. The interface is a bit like Windows Explorer but in a much more organized way. Searching for files is done quickly and smoothly and the results are displayed in a nice manner. When the results are not what the user is looking for, the application can be used to search for files with specific criteria (for instance all the files with a certain string on their name). The program can also create, delete and rename indexes, allowing you to group together all your files and folders, adding as many indexes as you need. You can also set up indexes to be displayed in the interface or in a list form that can be used to search for specific files. Unfortunately, the program does not have a search tool for images. Other than that, it supports most of the file types that have a content but no search tools. If you need something more, you may want to look at Scrivener. In conclusion, Wing File Search is a good program if you want a Windows explorer like application to manage your content.
